In Two Weeks Missouri State Fair Will Be On

Features and Displays Be of Highest Class

Missouri's thirty-ninth annual state fair will open in Sedalia two weeks from yesterday, to continue through August 26. Jewell Mayes, State Commissioner of Agriculture and Charles W. Green, secretary, believe the exposition will exceed those of other years, that the displays of products, resources, skill, live stock and recreational features will draw larger crowds than have been here in many years.

The 236 acres are being made ready for the public. They are beginning to look "livable." Grass, flowers, concession stands, and all, give an air of fair time, the hustle and bustle of "getting ready."

Roads leading to the grounds are part of the Missouri State Highway system and are maintained by this department. The Twelve Mile Road District has blacktopped and widened Sixteenth street from the new entrance to the railroad crossing, extending the width from 20 to 60 feet. State Fair boulevard from Sixteenth street to highway 50, or Broadway, has also been blacktopped and reconditioned.

Four Gates At Entrance

The new entrance on Sixteenth street with four gates instead of two, and the widened roadway, will expedite the traffic situation sixty per cent, Mr. Green states.

The WPA program, which began in April, 1938, with an expenditure of $98,000, is almost completed. This provided for rehabilitating several buildings, erecting a new floriculture building, laying new water mains, improving sanitary conditions, landscaping and adding other improvements. In addition about $2,000 has been spent, making a total expenditure of $100,000 on the grounds.

Dual Racing Track

Sedalia has one of three dual racing plants in the United States, and the running and horse races will provide entertainment of the finest kind for the fair visitors.

Four states, which have not been represented here in many years, have sent in entries. There are 256 entries from 204 horses in the speed department, an all time fair record according to Ed Duensing, Jefferson City, superintendent of the speed department the past twenty-two years.

Horse show entries are coming in splendidly. This show will be held each evening, from Sunday to Friday inclusive, in the air cooled coliseum.

Tents are to be erected to take care of the overflow stock entries and the baby beef entries will be housed in a brick building at the south part of the grounds because of the increased interest in the junior department. The poultry will be shown in the original poultry building, which has not been done for some years.

The automobile races will be on the opening Saturday and Sunday. Sunday will be the annual American Legion, Department of Missouri celebration, and there will be a veterans program in the afternoon in addition to the races.

All children twelve and under are admitted free on Monday.

Charles W. Green To Talk On The Fair

Charles W. Green, secretary of the Missouri State Fair, will be guest speaker at the noonday meeting of the Rotary club, at Hotel Bothwell, Monday noon. He will talk on the state fair, which opens here August 19.

Faces Charge After Collision Near Junction

Negro Accused of Driving While Intoxicated

Burtn Williams, negro, of Sedalia is in Hospital No. 2 suffering with a compound fracture of the left arm and bruises, received Saturday morning when his car, a 1929 Buick, and a 1934 Ford pickup truck collided on Highway 65 two miles south of the Marshall junction. Three other negroes received slight injuries.

Saturday afternoon Sergeant P. E. Corl and Trooper Lester V. Estes filed charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated, against Williams. The charges were filed in the court of Justice of the Peace J. C. Connor. A hearing will not be set until Williams is released from the hospital.

The Ford was driven by Robert Lock, negro, of Richmond and he was accompanied by Louis Thompson of Richmond, Geraldine Hinkle of Carrollton, and Elvira Lovell, of Norborne, Mo., also negroes. They all received slight cuts and bruises.

Ted Aulgar of Marshall, who was passing the scene, picked up Lock and his companions and took them to the Marshall police station where their injuries were treated. Williams returned to the home of his father-in-law where his arm was bandaged and he then returned to the accident with relatives to see just what had occurred.

One Asleep in Car

Sergeant Corl and Trooper Estes, found Louis Alexander of Independence, Mo., asleep in the rear of the car when they arrived. When they aroused him they told him he had a flat tire. He looked at the wheel and said "So Ise have, so I'se have." He was then told the tires were flat on the other side, and when he saw the car was a wreck on that side shouted, "I'se war'n't driving, I'se war'n't driving." Alexander said he didn't even remember any accident.

Williams arrived on the scene a few minutes later and at first denied he was driving, but further questioning of relatives revealed he left the house and was behind the wheel of the car at the time.

Alexander was brought to Sedalia and held in the county jail until Saturday afternoon when he was released.

A "hold order" has been placed on Williams at the hospital.

Wife Fatally Shot by Husband

CAMDENTON, Mo., Aug. 5—(AP)—The condition of a Lake of the Ozarks region laborer was watched tonight by Camden county officials waiting to determine what action to take in connection with the slaying of his wife.

Mrs. Ralph Caviness, 28, was fatally wounded by a shotgun blast at her home south of Camdenton this morning.

Her husband, about 30, traced by bloodhounds, was taken to a Lebanon hospital suffering a slashed throat.

Sheriff Sam Laurie said Dick Mosier told him he was at the Caviness home this morning, heard a shot and saw Mrs. Caviness come running from the house crying her husband had shot her.

A companion of Mosier's ran away and Mosier came to Camdenton for aid. When officers reached the home Mrs. Caviness was dead. Her husband was traced to a spot 300 yards from the house. He was found with a slashed throat, unable to talk.

At Lebanon a physician reported he probably would recover. No inquest date was set pending his recovery.

Vast Maneuvers For The British During Week

Missions Of The French And British On To Moscow

LONDON, Aug. 5—(AP)—The army, navy and air force sharpened their weapons tonight for vast maneuvers next week which will find virtually the entire country geared to war-time efficiency.

At the same time Britain will carry on over conference tables in Moscow and Tokyo her attempts to negotiate a tri-power mutual assistance pact and an end to the Tientsin dispute.

There were two developments today in the talks with the Soviet Russian government.

1. British and French military missions left for Russia for conferences with Soviet military leaders designed to parallel and speed negotiations for the proposed alliance treaty.

2. William Strang, special envoy sent to Moscow June 12 to assist in the pact negotiations, will leave next week for London though obstacles still exist among the three powers. Sir William Seeds, the British ambassador, will carry on the talks.

Britain, meanwhile, was celebrating the first of the three days of the annual August bank holiday from which she will plunge into feverish activity next week.

Mock Air Warfare

More than 1,300 war planes and 55,000 Royal Air Force officers and men will stage a mock air war from next Tuesday to Friday to "defend" a wide area of southeastern England from waves of raids by "hostile bombers."

Planning to test how the country would fare in an air attack from Europe, the R. A. F. has earmarked 500 of its latest bombers as the attacking fleet and some 800 fighters and reconnaissance planes are allocated to defense.

At the peak of the mock air war, two-thirds of England will be blacked out during the early hours of Thursday in a test of the air raid precautions organization.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 5—(AP)—The charter party announced today circulation of petitions for the recall of Mayor Bryce B. Smith and six Democratic councilmen would start Wednesday. Meanwhile Chief L. B. Reed continued his drastic shakeup in the police department, now under state control.

Charles W. Regan, city clerk, agreed to furnish 8.650 petition blanks Wednesday morning and an additional 2,160 blanks as soon as they can be prepared.

Hal W. Luhnow. charter party chairman, who had asked for 38,000 blanks, accepted the smaller number under protest. He pointed out it would be necessary to average 16 signatures to each blank which has spaces for only 25 signatures.

Approximately 40,000 qualified signers are necessary to assure a recall election.

Found Seriously Hurt On Tracks

Walter Galvin Hunt, 39, was found lying near the Missouri Pacific tracks and Vermont avenue, about 1:10 o'clock this morning, dangerously injured. It is believed he was struck by an eastbound freight train that had just passed.

Hunt was found by Lindsey Smith, a Negro, who said he knew him only as Skinny, and that he lived near the gas plant.

Smith called police headquarters, an ambulance was called, and accompanied by an officer and Smith he was taken to the Bothwell hospital. It was believed his skull was fractured and the attending physician said his condition was critical.

Papers carried by Hunt indicated he is a WPA worker.

"I want to go home," the boy pleaded tearfully. Searchers who plodded the area all last night discovered him within two miles of the Schohaire County farm home from which he wandered Thursday morning.

State police, with two bloodhounds, had aided the CCC group in combing a mountainous section swept by rain.

Business Gain For Autumn

Outlook Bright For Increase All Over Country

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—(AP)—Merchants from coast to coast, who deal with Mr. and Mrs. John Consumer across retail counters of department and specialty stores, predominantly expect autumn business to be better than last year, the National Retail Dry Goods Association said today.

The Association, representing some 5,700 department, dry goods and specialty stores, reported 86 per cent of a "representative group of increases. averaging six to eight per cent over all fall months last year.

It was estimated department and specialty store sales for September, October and November might approximate $1,230,000,000 against $1,150,000,000 in the comparable 1938 period.

Cited most frequently as reasons for the optimism, the Association noted, were:

(1) Industrial improvement the last few months and well sustained retail trade this summer.

(2) Abundant farm harvests in

(4) A feeling the political situation in the United States "had been bettered and would prove less disturbing to business."

Hike On Social Security Voted

Senate Action For Delay To Increase In Taxation

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—(AP)—A Senate vote of 58 to 4 completed Congressional action today on legislation to increase outlays for social security and, at the same time, postpone a scheduled increase in taxes.

The legislation sailed to approval after months of wrangling between the House and Senate and after Senator Connally (D-Tex.), had pounded his desk and charged that Congress paid a $695,000,000 "price" for elimination of his amendment to increase the government's share of outlays in the federal-state program of old age assistance.

Connally's amendment would have required the federal government to match state old age assistance contributions $2 for $1, up to a total of $15 a month per beneficiary. Above that figure, the Washington government would have been directed to match state contributions on a fifty-fifty basis up to an aggregate of $40.

Congress retained the present dollar-for-dollar matching but increased the total that might be raised in this way from $30 to $40 a month per recipient.

The Texas senator charged that Senator LaFollette (Prog.-Wis.), had failed to stand by the Senate vote in support of the Connally amendment after he became a member of a conference committee which undertook the task of adjusting differences over the legislation.

Connally asserted that an amendment by LaFollette to bring 200,000 additional persons under the old age insurance program had been agreed to by the conference committee.

(Old age insurance is the system under which employers and employes both pay taxes to finance pensions for employes after they reach 65. Old age assistance is for persons now old and in need.)

La Follette's proposal, which was included in the finally- approved legislation, provides that a person who has paid some old

One Killed In Primary Held In Kentucky

Johnson Takes An Early Lead For The Democrats

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 5.—(AP)—One man was killed and another wounded today in Harlan county shootings to mar primary day in Kentucky.

In the primary returns, slowly tabulated due to a long ballot, Lieutenant Governor Ken Johnson maintained a slight lead over former congressman John Young Brown on the basis of returns from 335 of the state's 4,307 precincts, in the contest for the Democratic nomination for governor.

At this tabulation, the vote stood:
Johnson 22,963.
Brown 18,412.
Arnett 308.

Secretary of State Charles D. Arnett, also a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, was running a poor third.

In the Republican race for nomination for governor, Circuit Judge King Swope of Lexington was ahead of John Sherman Cooper, Somerset lawyer, by a small margin.

The vote:
Swope 7,197.
Cooper 5,552.

Dies of Bullet Wounds

At Harlan James Howard, 35, a farmer, died in Harlan hospital from a bullet wound received shortly after the polls closed in nearby Baxter. Royal Wolfe, 30, unemployed, was held in county jail awaiting arraignment on a shooting charge.

Earlier Robert Thomas, 25, was wounded in the abdomen in a fight at Ages and Delbert Cross, 30, was held without charge.

Sheriff Herbert C. Cawood said neither shooting had any connection with today's primary but were fights resulting from "old grudges." No disorder at polls was reported in Harlan county, where some 300 national guardsmen are on duty.

The troopers were ordered into the county by Gov. A. B. Chandler more than a month ago during a labor contract dispute. At one time they numbered more than 1,000.

The situation that brought about their presence was linked closely to the most warmly disputed issue of the Democratic gubernatorial campaign between Johnson, backed by Governor Chandler's organization, and Brown, now an attorney for the CIO'S United Mine Workers.

Johnson contended the CIO was "communistic" and the nomination and election of Brown would mean the state would be "run" by CIO chieftain John L. Lewis.

Brown, claiming new deal favor and terming Johnson anti-Roosevelt, asserted the Lieutenant Governor was trying to pit "class against class."

Pepper Arouses Critics; Farm Fund Given Approval

(By Richard L. Turner)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—(AP)—The 76th Congress adjourned tonight after a final, furious clash between a new dealer and administration critics within the Democratic party.

All work completed and the House in recess, the Senate heard an exchange between Senator Pepper (D-Fla.), enthusiastic Roosevelt supporter, and a group of other Democrats which for plain forensic bitterness eclipsed any of the quarrels of the preceding seven months.

"I am unwilling," the Floridan shouted, "to let this session of the Congress end without lifting my voice to decry the unholy alliance of those in and out of Congress, who have been willing to scuttle the American government and the American people and jeopardize the peace of the world because they hate Roosevelt and what Roosevelt stands for."

With that the administration critics were on the alert. And when Pepper went on to accuse members of the supposed alliance "of having prostituted their power to serve the United States Chamber of Commerce, the Manufacturers' association and the beneficiaries of special privilege," a half dozen were on their feet simultaneously clamoring for action.

Pepper Called To Order

Obtaining the floor, Senator Burke (D-Neb.) asked that, under the rules of the Senate, the chair call "Pepper to order." The chair did so, forcing Pepper to take his seat. New deal Senator Minton (D-Ind.) following the formula of the rules, then moved that Pepper be permitted "to proceed in order." On a roll call vote, the motion carried and Pepper resumed.

But Burke interrupted again with an ironic "parliamentary inquiry" whether a senator who believed it impossible for Pepper to proceed in order could permissibly return to the cloak room. Without awaiting a reply, he strode from the chamber.

Later, several senators arose in reply. Bailey (D-N.C.) called the Pepper speech "cowardly and mendacious."

"Under the rules of the Senate," said Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) presiding, "such a statement is out of order."

"In order or out of order," Bailey snapped in reply, "I shall make this statement. I shall make it privately."

He, too, left the chamber.

Senator Downey (D-Calif.), like Pepper a new dealer, pleaded for "understanding between senators," and added:

"God help us, if we can't meet our problems in a spirit of tolerance and understanding and recognize the right of the opposition to present its views."

Three Important Actions

The day's work had been concluded in comparatively short order. It consisted of three actions. The Senate, in a wrangle between Connally of Texas and LaFollette of Wisconsin, approved a conference compromise on amendments to the Social Security Act. Both branches of Congress adopted a "compromise" version of the third deficiency bill.

It would not, of course, be adjournment day without a filibuster or the threat of one. Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) supplied it in this instance. Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations committee, attempted to bring up a bill to permit the sale of warships and munitions to South American countries on a cash basis.

Vandenberg replied that so deep was his opposition that he would see to it personally that the measure did not pass. Pittman, always

Agreement In Ending Strike Is Ratified

General Motors To Speed Up Production

DETROIT, Aug. 5.—(AP)—General Motors Corp., a month behind schedule because of a CIO-United Auto Workers strike, today prepared to swing into accelerated production of 1940 models, and observers predicted the industry would have a 4,000,000-unit year.

The agreement ending the strike was ratified by the union's rank and file membership "almost unanimous," R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW-CIO announced. He said there were "less than 100" votes against the settlement terms. The settlement memorandum was signed by representatives of the corporation and the union late this afternoon.

William S. Knudsen, G. M. president, announced preparations would be made for a year "at least as great" as the 1939 production year, with the corporation's employes receiving approximately $400,000,000 in wages.

Industrial analysts were inclined to put an optimistic interpretation on Knudsen's statement and forecast a fatter year than the one just closing for the industry.

Increased Demand

Two factors figured in the predictions. First, there has been a steady up-trend in consumer demand, and it is believed the replacement needs still are far ahead of production. Secondly, General Motors' settlement with the union carries a promise of no 'wildcat' strikes during the 1940 model production season.

Approximately 7,600 G. M. skilled workers who have been on strike and as many more production workers, forced into idleness because of the stoppage will start back to work Monday in plants in Detroit, Pontiac, Flint, and Saginaw, Mich., and Cleveland.

Among the chief provisions of the settlement were increases in Moral Teaching Needed, But Who's To Do It?

The suggestion of a Cleveland grand jury that a course in morals be given in the public schools has been attracting no end of attention.

It should. For if the country and the world today need anything it is a sharpening up of dulled moral senses.

But it does not follow that the public school are necessarily the best place to bring about this revival. The reason is obvious. Not everybody agrees on what is moral and what is immoral. Practically everyone agrees that two and two are four, that antidisestablishmentarianism is spell-antidisestablishmentarianism, and that St. Louis is roughly due north of New Orleans.

But question three men about the morality involved in quaffing a tall, cool mint julep. One will say, "It is an immoral act." The second will say, "It is not immoral, but it is most unwise." And the third will say, "It is not only quite moral, but a good idea to boot." In short, there is no general agreement on the morals involved in this quite simple act.

Therein lies the danger in trying to set up a program of moral teaching in the public schools. The more specific it is, the harder it is to arrive at a program that will not conflict with specific ideas of morals held by devotees of various religions, sects, and creeds. It would have to be confined to the most elemental and generally accepted principles.

Ohio's education director, E. N. Dietrich, commented that the public schools are already teaching morals. "It should be taught in everything we do. It isn't necessary to have a special course."

And of course that is true, too. Pupils cannot go to school together, nor study anything worthwhile under discipline, without learning something about morals. Some educators believe morals are one thing that cannot be taught, but which must be learned in association with others.

Many educators and penologists immediately suggested that trying to reduce crime among youth by moral teaching would never achieve as much as improvement in economic conditions, elimination of bad housing, providing jobs and adequate recreation facilities, and alleviation of sheer poverty. These breed crime faster than any moral teaching can eliminate it.

The interest aroused by this grand jury's suggestion, however, is such as to suggest that many, many people realize the problem.

Certainly it is not one to be laughed off or ignored. for the morals of this old world and its people have been one of its primary problems since Noah, and probably long before. Everybody and every institution which can make a real contribution to better personal and national morals today is fighting an old battle, but a necessary one.

About 6,750,000 persons use London's swimming-baths annually.

The United States is the largest consumer of asbestos in the world.

The automobile industry is the source of income for about 10,000,000 persons in the United States.

Telephone wires crossing the Andes mountains between Argentine and Chile are 12,300 feet high, the highest in the world.

Anything But What We Are

One of the most ingratiating of all human traits is the wistful anxiety of men to seem to be something they are not.

The society climber scrambles and wangles to be seen in a set to which she by no right belongs; the celebrity hunter fights to be seen with people who are not interested in him; and all of us strive mightily to achieve an appearance of being something we are not.

The man who has never been out of the county buys phony luggage labels and plasters them on his suitcase, hoping to give people the impression that Cairo and Kamchatka and Ceylon are just week-end excursions to him.

And now comes the phony auto plate, nicely stamped in colors, with the insignia of Erie or Greece or Egypt, so that drivers can give an impression to unknown passersby that they have toured far lands.

It is silly, and stupid, and may cause confusion in identifying a car in an emergency, but it is so very, very human!

Yes, We Progress!

Events of the past decade have been such as to shake the faith of many people in progress. Because the world has gone backward in so many respects since the World War, people are tempted to believe progress has ended.

That is where perspective is needed. It is true that we may move backward in any one year, perhaps, or in any 10 years. It is necessary to look back over history to see that the world really does move forward, slowly, even if three backward steps are sometimes taken following four forward.

The other night E. G. Gooch, British president of the National Union of Agricultural Workers, was entertained at dinner. The place, Windsor Castle; his host, King George himself. Yet just a little more than 100 years before, Dorsetshire farmers were exiled to the penal colony at Botany Bay for joining a trade union.

Yes, the world moves, and despite periods of backward steps, it moves in the long run in the right direction.

London police recover 99 out of every 100 automobiles stolen.

Thomas Sheraton, famed furniture designer, endeared himself to fellow designers by publishing, in 1791, a series of volumes on furniture design for the trade. The books were a failure financially.

• The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — An adjourning Congress is like a sailor on a spree—noisy, truculent, unmanageable. It satisfies no one except possibly the gallery fans and sightseers who jam the great domed Capitol to see the riotous show.

This is harvest time for the Capitol guides, who lead goggle-eyed flocks of visitors up and down the marble corridors—a mother from Butte with a babe in arms, a boy scout troop from Fond du Lac, a bride and groom, oldsters, youngsters, city folks and farm folks.

With mouths agape and craning necks, they listen to the machine-gun patter of the guides, the chaotic clatter of the wrangling Senators and Congressmen, and the banging of the gavels of the presiding officers who vainly try to keep order among the squalling members.

The guides reel off a routine travelogue that they have memorized. It is chiefly historical and steps on no toes, past or present. But if they could talk off the record and tell what is going on under the Dome, then their flocks really would be pop-eyed. Here's a sample of the comment if The Merry-Go-Round were the guide on a Capital tour:

Delirium Tremens

"This, ladies and gentlemen, is the great rotunda of the Capitol. It is 98 feet, 8 inches in diameter, and rises more than 183 feet to the central dome. The paintings and sculpture arrayed before you once caused Mark Twain to exclaim, 'What delirium tremens of art!' and Senator Charles Sumner to complain on the Senate floor that the rule to bar bad art from the Capitol had been 'too often forgotten.'

"You are now standing on the very spot where stood the King and Queen of England, on Congressman Sol Bloom's private carpet. It was here also that Congressman Nat Patton of Texas addressed them as 'Cousin George' and 'Cousin Elizabeth.' To those who know Nat Patton intimately, that was no surprise. He is very relation-conscious, having three relatives on the federal payroll.

"Now we enter Statuary Hall, which served as the Representatives' Chamber until 1857. For seven years thereafter the hall was empty, except for 'cobwebs, apple cores, and hucksters' carts.' One Congressman complained about the state of the place, saying 'I look around to see where the venerable John Quincy Adams trembled in his seat, and I see a huckster selling ginger bread; I look to see where Clay sat, and I find a woman selling oranges and root beer.'

"Now, folks, we pass the very spot where Congressman Martin Dies of Texas once stood when he took up a collection for 'the wife of the Unknown Soldier.' Martin, by the way, is about to resume his un-American investigation. He has been out romping about the country making speeches about what a great man he is, but now that Congress is winding up, he will return to start up his show without competition from the main circus.

Soup To Nuts

"On the left, folks, is the private office of Speaker Bankhead, one of the squarest shooters. He is one Democratic leader who hasn't double-crossed the President. Take a peek inside, folks. See that thermos bottle on the table? It contains hot soup, brought by Mrs. Bankhead every noon for her husband's lunch.

"Directly above is the office of the famous—or infamous, depends on how you look at it—Rules Committee, one of the most important bodies in Congress. It was created some 30 years ago as a result of George Norris' historic fight against the boss rule of Joe Cannon. But now the committee has made itself boss of usurping power it was never intended to have.

"And here, ladies and gentlemen, is the Rules Committee room. That chair is the one occupied by Gene Cox, the little Georgian, who believes that 25 cents an hour is too much to pay textile workers, but who draws down for himself and relatives a grand total of $27,600 a year from the government payroll — more than any other federal officer except the President.

"Now we go to the other wing of the Capitol, friends, pausing on the way to look in at the House restaurant. Some of those Congressman you see enjoying beer and sandwiches at the far table are the very ones who were engaged in the same pleasant recreation at the time of the vote on the arms embargo amendment to the Neutrality bill. Had they been on the job the amendment would have been defeated.

Leaders and Refrigerators

"Before we enter the Rotunda, notice this passageway. It leads to the private office of Joe Martin of Massachusetts. Two years ago, he was a little known Congressman; now he is the efficient leader of the rising tide of Republicanism in the House. No vote finds Martin unprepared; he keeps his command present and disciplined at all times. He is one floor leader who knows his business and performs it.

"Before we enter the Senate wing, I call your attention to the famous sculpture by Crawford, 'The Progress of American Civilization and the Decline of the Indian,' showing a pioneer chopping wood with his left hand.

"And now, friends, the Senate of the United States, where I know you all want to see Jack Garner. This is his office, and inside is the famous Garner refrigerator, one reason for the popularity of the Vice President.

"Here gather every afternoon such rebel Democrats as Byrd of Virginia, Clark of Missouri, Burke of Nebraska, and Gerry of Rhode Island. Bitter enemies of the President, they come to 'strike a blow for liberty.' Often they strike several blows. Jack once boasted that he had struck 15 'blows' between noon and 6 o'clock.

"It was around this refrigerator that the famous Hatch bill was hatched to purify politics. How much purifying it will do remains to be seen. The real purpose of its originators was to use it as a weapon to block Roosevelt control of the 1940 convention.

The Senate

"I will now show you the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. At this great oval table with the green cover, Roosevelt suffered one of his worst defeats of the session. It was right here that the neutrality bill was shelved by a 12 to 11 vote as a result of a combination of State department procrastination and prima-donna bungling by Chairman Key Pittman.

"And this, friends, is the private office of the Democratic Floor Leader, 'Dear Alben' Barkley. He is a fine fellow, and everybody likes him, but he is not hard-boiled enough to keep an obstreperous party in line. Take that vote on the highway provision of the lending bill. Four votes would have saved it, but Barkley was caught napping. The four — Johnson of Colorado, Thomas of Oklahoma, Pittman, and Walsh of Massachusetts—were not to be found and the item was lost.

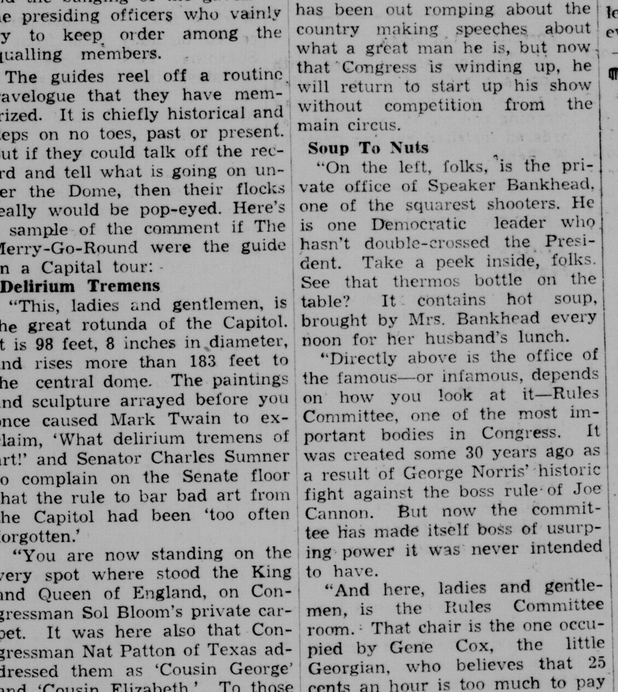

"Now the Senate chamber itself where the members are taking their final oratorical flings before adjourning. They are bringing to a close a session which will go down in history as the most obstructive and sterile since Hoover's last Congress fought him to a stand-still.

"Before you, ladies and gentlemen, is the full bloom of the U. S. system of checks and balances—in this case mostly checks. Look closely but don't lean on the balustrade. There is a rule against that so no one will be tempted to haul off and heave something at the boys down below. They are very sensitive about having things thrown at them."

There is a plot of ground in Jersey City, New Jersey, upon which is located what is known in the Public School system of the city as School No. 11. The first school was built on this site in 1664 when that part of Jersey City was called "Bergen" by the early Dutch settlers who had built a stockade 800 feet square to enclose the settlement. The present building first used in 1905, is the fifth on this historic ground, which has now seen 277 years of continuous educational activity.

The brick building in which was quartered the first bank in Illinois Territory still stands in Shawneetown, Illinois. An Act of Congress gave John Marshall permission to establish this bank in 1813, and a room in his home was used until 1839. The building which cost $80,000 was sold during the Civil War for $6,500.

The first United States Supreme Court appointed by President Washington in 1789, consisted of John Jay, of N. Y., Chief Justice, William Cushing, of Mass., James Wilson, of Penn., John Blair, of Virginia, John Rutledge, of S. Carolina, Robert H. Harrison, of Maryland, commissioned, but declined, James Iradell, of N. Carolina, all associate justices. Apparently Rutlege never sat in Supreme bench, and resigned March 5, 1791, being succeeded by Thomas Johnson, of Maryland. When John Jay went as an envoy to England, Rutledge succeeded him as Chief Justice in July, 1795, but served only during balance of year because of his ill-mannered denunciation of Jay's treaty, causing Senate's refusal of confirmation. He was succeeded by Senator Oliver Ellsworth, of Connecticut as Chief Justice, who served until 1799. The membership of the Court was first increased to nine on March 3, 1837. Subsequently it was reduced, and again increased to nine on April 10, 1869.

● SERIAL STORY

GHOST DETOUR

BY OREN ARNOLD

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday: Before the horrified tourists, Dick and Roselee, Quait jumps from the bank window, starts for a horse. Then Christine fires, wounds him. He fires back. Seconds later, Roselee rides off after the fleeing ex-convict. Dick tries to catch her but he is too late.

CHAPTER XVII

CHRISTINE PALMER would never know how close she came to death in that mad race to catch the Goldcrest convict, Carl Quait. Quait, alias John Sawyer, alias Professor York, fired once at Christine and missed his aim. The murderous .44 bullet buried itself in the bank wall but it scarcely missed the girl.

He was out of her sight in another instant so Christine could do no more shooting at him. She had fired four times. She saw Roselee, then a lot of other people, and then big Dick Bancroft running from the hotel. She didn't wait to see what they would do. Because, dominating everything else in her consciousness now was the fact that Franklin Larraway lay wounded in the dim bank building behind her.

She turned from the window, hastened across the narrow hallway and through a door into the teller's cage.

"Franklin! . . . Darling!" She was kneeling over him at once. She spoke in a hushed, tremulous whisper that revealed something of her great stress. Franklin raised his head. He had been half sitting half lying, supporting himself with his hands, and he turned to look at her now.

"Chris-tine! Are you—are you—" The lad was almost inarticulate. He could only stare at her now.

"Franklin! O-o-oh! W-where are—"

"My leg. The thigh. It's painful, but you—are you—"

"I am all right! All right, Franklin! Except that I am crazy for fear you—you—!"

"Christine, you came to my rescue! You took my gun and fought that man down! Followed him! . . . Fired at him and he fired back at you!"

"You were in danger. Your life! You, Franklin! He had tried to kill you!"

Her arm was around him, awkwardly but lovingly, and he was looking up at her and shaking his head a little oddly as if incredulous of what he had seen and knew to be true. His utter paleness had turned to color now. His delicately chiseled face was smudged with dirt where his hand had rubbed first the floor and then his cheek in some unconscious movement.

"Christine! You—you called me darling!"

She only nodded, sobbing a little and staring at him, very close to him, and trying to swallow and control her voice.

"Christine! You—risked your life—for me! For me! Me! You called me—you—you told me once you loved Dick! But you risked your life for—for—"

"No! . . . No!" She almost shouted it. "I didn't say I loved him! At first I—"

And then there was great commotion outside and a dozen or more persons had run into the old bank. In a moment, more men and women and young people of college age were staring down at them and at the splotch of blood forming under Franklin's leg, and everybody seemed to be talking at once.

DICK BANCROFT thought he would go crazy in that long five or 10 seconds when he was forced to watch Roselee jump to a horse and ride in pursuit of a criminal.

He was even more frantic when he finally freed himself of the tourists who had unwittingly hemmed him in, and leaped out to see Roselee a few hundred yards behind Carl Quait, pounding her horse. Unconsciously he prayed then, shouting to high heaven in his frenzy and in his stifling sense of futility. That he, a strong man, an ex-fullback justifiably proud of his strength and muscular ability, should be forced simply to stand by was, of course, maddening.

There was no other horse at hand. Only Mrs. Hogan's five sleepy burros were visible, and even they had scarcely bothered to lift their eyelids during the swift drama that had stirred men and women in the ghost town. Franklin knew not one could be prodded to more than a lazy gallop. That knowledge itself was infuriating, as if fate or something were taking a further ironic slap at him.

Then he became conscious of the cars parked farther down the street.

No cars had been allowed in the business section of Goldcrest, lest they detract from the picturesque quality of the place when tourists came. One exception was the light pickup truck used to haul supplies and as a general utility vehicle. It was parked, by chance, in front of the barber shop now, the once glittering "Tonsorial Parlors" where Dick and Franklin had sleeping quarters. Moreover, it was turned down hill, ready to drive out of town.

THE instant Dick saw it he started running. The truck's keys were already in it, and it was less than a block from him now. He ran as he had not run since he had carried a football the autumn before.

In scarcely five seconds he was there, had the motor roaring, and in the same breath he had the truck in motion as well. People were yelling behind him. He didn't heed. He choked and accelerated, bumping over the old rocks and ruts and litter of Main street. Away in the distance now he saw the two galloping horses, and so he pushed his accelerator to the floor.

He caught up with Roselee's horse before he dared hope to. Quait was still a hundred yards ahead.

"STOP!" Dick yelled at her. "ROSELEE, STOP!"

He did not wait for her to obey his command. He had pulled up on her right at her side. Impulsively, he stepped to the running board of his truck and caught her horse's reins. Then he jumped.

The truck swerved into some joshua growth, tilted on one side and was halted there, but Dick went bounding for a full 50 yards before the frightened animal could be brought under control. He would hit the ground with his toes, bounce and jump several feet, swing and bounce again, clinging all the while to the reins and shrieking at Roselee to hold tight.

When he could do so he literally pulled the girl out of the saddle and mounted it himself. He glanced up. Quait had left the road, heading out onto the sloping desert land studded with rocks and joshua growth and thorny cacti. But even as Dick and Roselee watched they saw Quait's horse stumble, saw Quait somersault through the air.

"Dick—he's thrown—he's down!"

Dick caught a glimpse of Quait limping swiftly afoot. Evidently the man was not yet willing to be captured. And Dick remembered that Quait had carried a gun in his hand.

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY

July ended my twentieth year of practice in Sedalia. It brought to memory some of the first cases I had. The very first was a woman who had hemorrhages for eight months. Chiropractic cured her shortly. She also had asthma which also was cured chiropractically and she decided to have her eight year old daughter treated for asthma. The daughter responded quickly but the ailment would soon return. It was evidently caused from some allergic condition associated with their farm home which we could not determine. The child would be free from asthma when away from home. Some cases of asthma are solely from nervous conditions and such will not respond quickly but if from an allergic condition, it will not correct it unless the cause can be determined. Often we can find out what these conditions are. We now have better means of determining such conditions than we had twenty years ago. We have a better understanding of the nervous conditions which cause it and consequently get a larger percentage of cases well. Even twenty years ago we got many cases well that others had failed upon.

Sunday School Lesson

Elijah: A Life of Courage
Text: Kings 18:30-39

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

"A life of courage" is the description of Elijah for the purposes of this lesson. It might have been "a man of faith," for Elijah's courage was essentially associated with the depth and strength of his faith.

We have seen that King Asa and his son, King Jehoshaphat, were both confronted with widespread corruption in Israel, because of the idolatrous worship in which the people were imitating pagan peoples who surrounded them. As we have indicated, this was not merely a matter of mistaken ideas in religion, but the worship of Baal was associated with licentious practices contrary to the fine ideals of home, family, and social relationships, which were so inculcated by the religion of Israel.

We forget perhaps at times the extent to which these ideals of home life and integrity of love relationships are a product of Jewish life and religion. It would be well, in an age when, without idolatrous worship, or with idolatrous worship in other forms, there seems so great danger of society's lapsing into loose and evil practices, if we could revive something of that nobility and purity of life upon which Elijah insisted.

Elijah seems to have stood with the minority in Israel, though he had a great many more followers than he was disposed to believe in his moments of discouragement.

Our lesson centers around the famous test by fire, in which Elijah had a sign from heaven and put the prophets of Baal to rout. We can neither explain nor comment upon the miraculous aspect of the narrative, but the one thing that does stand out so strongly is the integrity and honor of Elijah in contrast with the trickery and deceit that have always been a part of false religion and of the activity of false prophets.

The ultimate test of the true, as distinguished from the false, is the sincerity and unselfishness of all true religious faith and action. Elijah was not in any sense a self-seeker, nor had he in mind the establishing of his own power or authority. He began in his test by fire by calling all the people to him.

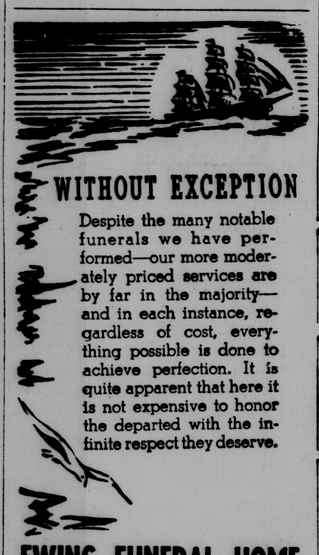

We must remember that, despite the high teachings and ideals that emerged, it was a crude and raw age when people were more apt to be influenced by outward demonstrations than by the inner integrity of truth and righteousness. The people were tremendously impressed with the miracle that they saw, and we are told that they fell on their faces and said, "Jehovah, he is God; Jehovah, he is God."

How genuine was this demonstration and its repentance we cannot tell, but Elijah's triumph as the prophet of the living God was complete. That is, it was complete except for Elijah himself.

As has so often happened in the world, we find the man of courage despondent and weakening after he has fulfilled his purpose. He cries out to God in a voice of despair even in his hour of victory, complaining that all Israel has become recreant and that he only is left among the faithful. The divine voice had to remind him that 7000 had not bowed the knee to Baal, which after all was a considerable company in support of the prophet.

It is in accord with human experience that the hour of deep discouragement often follows the time of greatest triumph. Perhaps it is due to the fact that even a good man succumbs to the physical strain, and that the demon of doubt or of discouragement attacks him when he has the least strength to resist. But Elijah stands, none the less, as a great figure of faith and of courage. We think of him in his hour of faith and victory, rather than in his mood of unwarranted isolation. He was only one among the faithful.

Latter Day Saints Reunion

STEWARTSVILLE, Mo., Aug. 5—(AP)—A few miles from the temple foundations which are all that remain of old Far West once the capital of the Mormon church, the 47th annual reunion of the Far West stake of the reorganized church of Latter Day Saints will be held at the 20-acre camp meeting ground near Stewartsville August 17-27.

This reunion draws many thousand visitors every year. Already the Maple Grove is being tidied up. Hundreds of tents are ready for those who wish to camp out.

The restful atmosphere of the reunion is more that of a chautauque than of the old-fashioned, exciting camp meeting. Many types of games are provided for the young. During the day, there are lectures and lessons. At night, there is a preaching service of general, not doctrinal, nature. This is followed by the even-song service of old songs, one of the outstanding features.

The church president, Dr. Frederick M. Smith of Independence, Mo., grandson of the martyred prophet, Joseph Smith, will visit the reunion. Sometime during the sessions will come the annual baptizing services.

The Far West stake is one of five stakes in the church. It takes in several counties, including Buchanon county on the north and Ray county on the south. It takes its name from the early "Mormon" capital, Far West, in Caldwell county, which flourished from 1835 to 1838 when the Saints were driven out of the county and the whole state. Nothing is now left of the city except the temple foundations.

The church term "stake" was started by Joseph Smith in the early days of the church, when in a revelation he said he was told to establish "stakes" as a way of strengthening the curtains of the tent of the church.

Increased Grant For Wildlife

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 5—(AP)—A $31,396 federal grant under the wildlife restoration act will be given Missouri for the year ending June 13, 1940, the state conservation commission said today.

This is a sharp increase over the state's first grant—$8.30 received for a seven-month period starting Dec. 1, 1938.

The money was spent on the commission's program to improve natural environment for wildlife in the state.

Homemakers In Meeting

Mrs. O. A. Brunkhorst was hostess to the Syracuse Homemakers club on August 3, with Mrs. J. W. Kendrick as assistant hostess. There were approximately 50 members, visitors and children present.

The morning was spent socially, and the business meeting followed a luncheon.

Mrs. George Bond, the president, read the news letter, and poems were given by Mesdames Starke, Gibson, Allee and Neitzert. Mrs. William Olney presented the program, a book review on "Horse and Buggy Days," an interesting story told by a country doctor.

The roll call was answered by giving some experiences of "horse and buggy" days. Mrs. Brunkhorst lead a discussion on housing and culling pullets, and Miss Myrta Palmer, flower leader, talked on different kinds of flowers, raised to stand the dry weather.

Mrs. Keevil and Mrs. Gibson gave reports on their 4-H club work. Mrs. Wohlbeck and Mrs. Gibson reported interestingly on their trip to the New York World's fair. Nine members received birthday gifts from their Sunshine Pals. Those having birthdays this month are Mesdames C. W. Thomas, Evert Allee, Albert Nelson, T. C. Porter and Miss Palmer.

The club will meet with Mrs. Fred Maise on September 7. The subject for discussion will be "Know Your Glass." Each member is asked to bring a piece of glassware for display. Roll call will be "It's a good thing to?"

Visitors at the meeting were Mrs. Sam White, Mrs. Lewis Siegel, Mrs. Leonard Siegel, Mrs. August Oehrke from the Farm club at Florence, Mrs. Foust Williams and daughter, Dorothy, and Mrs. Phillips from the Victory club.

Finally Revealed Boy Drowned

OMAHA, Aug. 5—(AP)—Three years ago 13-year-old Louis Circo disappeared from his home.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sebastiano Circo, spent much of their modest savings in circulating pictures of their son to police.

Friday Joe Servia, 17, revealed how he, Angelo Spampinato and another youth had gone swimming in the Missouri river, how the swift current swept all three off their feet.

Joe said he saved the Spampinato boy, but young Circo drowned before he could reach him.

Joe and Angelo entered into a solemn pact never to tell what happened. They were afraid, Joe said, to tell their families they had been swimming.

But Joe's conscience has troubled him these three years.

"I feel better now," Joe said.

WHY IT'S SO EASY TO OWN AN OPPORTUNITY FARM

WE HAVE LOTS of requests for details on Opportunity Farms. So many people want to know about the easy terms on which these farms can be bought.

It's as simple as this: You make a small down payment. Then figure 6% on the unpaid balance. This is the amount you will have to pay each year—and it covers both interest and principal payments.

The table on the right shows how small the yearly payments per $1,000 of unpaid balance can be.

Already we've helped many people to the ownership of fine farms. And their satisfaction in these farms is shown by the number of their friends they've encouraged to share in this opportunity! Why wait longer to get the facts about the farm you've dreamed of owning?

Every farm listed as an Opportunity Farm must have adequate, sound, weather-tight buildings, well-painted; improved soil, with good drainage, and expertly planned crop rotation. Every Opportunity Farm is a going concern.

Incidents Amusing And Otherwise About The State

By Ed Mills

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., Aug. 5—(AP)—There's just no permanency about things in Missouri. . . .

Lightning and wind tore two limbs from a huge tree in a Chillicothe yard the other day . . . and Jim Meek recalled it had been just 70 years since he and his brother, H. O. Meek, now dead, had transplanted it as a sapling from a stream bank. . . .

Some newspapermen do meet such interesting people. . . . William C. Tucker of the Columbia Tribune dropped into a Munich hot spot during a tour of Europe. . . . He and his two companions noted only one table but it was a good one. . . . So they took it and didn't know until a storm trooper ordered them to douse a fag that the table was reserved so Adolf Hitler wouldn't be too crowded. . . . According to Tucker, though, der fuehrer, seated at an adjoining table, issued an order that prevented their removal. . . and even slip "a half-way friendly, tolerant smile." . . .

Ten-year-old Bobby Cook, of Blythedale, has some attributes of Huck Finn. . . . Not only is he freckled and a fisherman . . . But he smokes homespun "long green" tobacco. . . . "Nothing," says his mother, who explains Bobby also chews and has been smoking since he was three, "seems to make him sick." . . .

Another of those intriguing organization names is the Sew-So club at Hannibal. . . .

Some more golf . . . and what golf . . . Byrl Gowin, of Carthage, let his troublesome driver rest for a time . . . then decided to try it on a 265-yarder at Columbia. . . . Sand the tee shot . . . Earl Green, La Plata druggist, has two aces to his credit on the same 145-yard hole on his home course. . . . And it was on that identical hole that Jerry Thomas made a cuckoo on his fifth attempt in a hole-in-one tournament.

The law and evidence. . . . St. Joseph municipal law permits operation of fruit stands on Sunday, but Leonard Hockaday was fined $5 in police court because he included celery among his wares. . . . Highway patrollers arrested a 71-year-old man for drunken driving at Clarence just because he was motoring along the Burlington railroad tracks at 3 a. m. . . . Someone thought to flag a train and keep it in Clarence till they got the car off the tracks.

Leroy McKenzie, 15, will remember long with gratitude the time he accepted Neighbor Bobby Turner's invitation to spend the night. . . . Leroy had been sleeping on a metal porch at his Springfield home all summer but the night he wasn't there lightning struck. . . The bed clothes on his swing were ashes. . . .

"Vacation trip over — to rest for a month," said a Fulton Sun-Gazette headline, and it sounds like a good idea.

That old gag about "don't take any wooden nickels," doesn't work so well in Missouri these days. . . . Boonville is auctioning them off for its Daniel Boone celebration. . . . Marshall manufacturing them to advertise its approaching centennial. . . .

Just in case you thought war-talking Europe had a preparedness monopoly. . . . St. Joseph just opened a new public market on a site designated for that purpose by Joseph Robidoux in his first plat for the city about a century ago. . . . Jefferson City business men met this week to plan their Christmas decorations. . . .

Agricultural idiosyncrasies . . . A three-legged gosling hatched at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Leytham near Galt is getting along just as well as its six weeks old kin. . . . Carthage isn't exactly in the tropics but Si Bridges has six healthy banana trees at his home there. . . . Horses hitched to new wagons in St. Joseph will wear rubber shoes.

It seems William Tecumseh Sherman wasn't always right about war. . . . Boonville's national guard enlisted men had their officers to mess at their recent Fort Sill, Oklahoma encampment. Served chicken and ice cream.

Roy Morgan's car was insured. . . . But when he left it parked on a Cape Girardeau hillside and came back to find it had rolled off into the Mississippi river he learned that kind of loss was overlooked in the policy. . . Now that city's 'Southeast Missourian" is urging the risk men to do something about such things in the future. . . .

Odds and ends . . . Isaac R. Reid, Fulton antique collector, says most of the old guns he buys still are loaded. . . . . Albert Campbell Thompson, of Maitland, has seven living grandparents and great grandparents. . . J. B. Moss, of St. Joseph, is 90, still walks to work. . . . Roger Taylor, Springfield district income tax collector, cans fruit for a hobby. . . .

Modest Rally On Stock Market

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—(AP)—The stock market today finished its first August week with a modest rally.

The list got off to an indifferent start, but soon converted small minus marks into recoveries running to a point or so.

Gains were whittled down at the close, but the Associated Press average of 60 stocks managed to retain a net advance of .2 of a point at 42.6. On the week this composite was off .4.

Attendance in boardrooms followed the usual summer Saturday pattern and was hardly worth mentioning. Dealings, consequently, were the lightest since July 15, amounting to only 236,980 shares. The turnover last Saturday totaled 245,360. The six-day volume was about 800,000 shares under the preceding week.

Some of the day's buying support, brokers said, was apparently due to the belief of certain traders that the market might have been oversold in Friday's sharp drop.

Wall Street seemingly was in a happy frame of mind because Congress was shutting up shop and going home. The underlying tenor of business still presented a bullish argument and merchandising surveys indicated consumer spending this fall was expected to top that of last year.

Foreign affairs, at the same time, continued a bit touchy market-wise and were believed to have kept many potential share purchasers in neutral territory.

Prominent on the come-back were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, American Telephone, Great Northern, Loft, Phelps Dodge, Kennecott and American Can.

Bonds were narrowly mixed in the slowest session in 21 years. Commodities turned irregular after early improvement. Wheat at Chicago was unchanged to off ¼ of a cent a bushel. Corn gained ⅛ to ⅝ cents and cotton was up 5 cents a bale to down as much.

Wheat Sags After An Early Gain

CHICAGO, Aug. 5—(AP)—Wheat futures sagged minor fractions today after having gained as much as ⅝ cent a bushel. The undertone was steady, however, and closing prices were unchanged to ¼ cent down.

Trade was light and affected by uncertainty over action by the House of Representatives on the $119,000,000 appropriation for crop loans, restored to the final deficiency bill yesterday by the Senate.

Light foreign demand for grain, due partially to a holiday at Liverpool, also was a trade deterring factor. The English market also will be closed Monday for a bank holiday.

Aiding the early upturn here was strength at Winnipeg, where prices advanced about ⅝ cent, partly on continued reports of crop damage and unfavorable weather. The Winnipeg market, which also will be closed for a holiday Monday, finished ⅛ to ¼ cent higher.

September wheat on the board of trade closed at 64c to 64⅛c and December at 64¾c. Corn finished ¼ to ⅝ cents up, September 42⅝c, December 42⅜c to 42½c; oats ¼ to ⅜ cents off; soy beans unchanged to ¼ cent off; rye ⅛ cent up and lard unchanged to 5 cents lower.

The corn market was firm, aided by fair buying that lifted May contracts to 45½c, up ⅝ cent from the previous close.

Trade in oats remained slow, but there was some selling of December contracts by elevator and northwestern interests.

Rye prices maintained a slight advance at the finish after having gained about ½ cent at times.

Lard prices were unchanged to slightly lower, being affected mostly by scattered liquidation.

New York, N. Y.—"IT'S TRUE! that Mickey Rooney gets his first stooge in M-G-M's 'Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever', seventh of the famous family series", says Wiley Padan. "He is Terry Kilburn, cast in the role of 'Stickin' Plaster' who constantly dogs Andy's footsteps . . . IT'S TRUE! that young Kilburn has an amazing memory for lines; he is able to read a dozen pages of dialogue a few times to himself and then recite all parts two weeks later! . . . The 'volcano' that is used in this Hardy picture was made by Mickey Rooney between scenes, because the original one too much resembled a professional job instead of one built by high school boys."

'Out West With The Hardy's' at Uptown Today, Monday and Tuesday

When the Hardys go Wild West in the wide open spaces, Judge Hardy faces the serious problem of keeping his energetic family properly corraled, but with his usual wisdom and understanding he manages to settle Andy's problems, prevents Marian from making a hasty marriage and solves the perplexing legal difficulties of an old sweetheart in "Out West With The Hardy's" which comes to the Uptown theatre. Today and Monday and Tuesday. This, the fifth of the Hardy pictures, follows them through another action-filled episode of their colorful doings, replete with hilarious comedy, human, heart warming pathos, trials and tribulations. It brings new laurels to the favorites millions of motion picture fans have come to know and love. Lewis Stone as the Judge, Mickey Rocney as Andy, Cecilia Parker as Marian, Fay Holden as Mrs. Hardy, Sara Haden as Aunt Milly, Ann Rutherford as Andy's 'steady" girl friend, Polly, and Don Castle as Dennis Hunt, Marian's Carvel boy friend. Second feature on the program is "First Offenders" with Walter Abel and Beverly Roberts, in the leading roles.

Missourians Had Active Part In Legislation

In Spotlight On Chief Issues Up To Congress

By Charles C. Haslet

WASHINGTON, August 5—(AP)—Neutrality, rail and water carrier legislation, relief and agriculture legislation brought Missouri's congressional delegation into the legislative spotlight during the session of congress just ended.

The bitter fight on the administration neutrality legislation which finally resulted in postponement of the bill in the senate, was led by Senator Clark of Missouri whose name has been mentioned frequently as a possibility for the democratic presidential berth in 1940.

On the senate floor and in committee Clark carried on a vigorous opposition to the proposed embargo changes in the neutrality bill.

In addition the Missouri senator took the floor unsuccessfully to oppose inclusion in the Wheeler-Truman railroad bill of a provision giving the interstate commerce commission authority to regulate inland waterway rates. He finally voted against the bill of which his colleague Senator Truman was a joint author. It was prepared after studies by a special committee of which Truman was chairman.

Bills By Missouri Senators

Clark introduced numerous bills during the session including the air pilot measure and one authorizing expenditure of additional millions of dollars for defense improvements in the Panama Canal zone. The latter measure was not adopted. In addition, Clark was an active member of the military affairs and chairman of the inter-oceanic canal committees.

Senator Truman introduced several railroad reorganization bills, the Wheeler-Truman measure passing after prolonged debate. Bills providing the railroads should be paid for transportation of government property and personnel and providing the government should pay for the construction of railroad bridges, were not acted upon. In addition the senate passed and sent to the house his bill requiring federally recognized drivers' licenses.

It was Truman who saved the reorganization bill for the administration. In Missouri at the time the vote was scheduled, Truman, holding the decision with his vote, flew back to Washington to vote for the bill. Senator Clark also voted for the measure.

Truman supported the administration on its major legislation. Clark, voted against some of the presidential-endorsed measures.

Truman voted for the Wheeler-Truman rail-water regulation bill, Clark against it. Truman voted for the bill authorizing the president to devalue the dollar and continuing the currency stabilization fund. Clark opposed it when the conference report was voted upon. Truman voted for the Florida ship canal bill, Clark against it.

Both senators, however, voted for the relief appropriation bills, the defense appropriation measure, reorganization, farm parity payments on which Clark introduced the amendment to the house bill, social security law amendments and the revenue measure.

On The House Side

In the house, Representative Hennings introduced "the peace bill of 1939," neutrality legislation similar to that submitted in the senate by Senator Pittman. It was superseded by the Bloom neutrality bill.

Representative Cannon, ranking house appropriations committee member, played an important part in framing the bill which appropriated relief funds for this fiscal year and in investigation of WPA, defending that organization against attacks. Cannon also was active as head of the agricultural appropriations sub-committee in obtaining a record $1,200,000,000 appropriation for agriculture this fiscal year.

Representative Zimmerman, a member of the agriculture committee, devoted most of the session to working on agricultural legislation.

It was Representative Cochran who headed the special reorganizing committee. Cochran said he was with the administration "100 per cent" in its legislative program during the session.

High Place In Chairmanship

Missouri held a place high in the list of states in the standpoint of committee chairmanships.

Cochran, in addition to heading the special committee, was chairman of the departmental and executive expenditures committee; Representative Romjue was chairman of the postoffice and post roads committee; Representative Bell headed elections No. 3 committee, and Representative Wood was chairman of the war claims committee. Cannon was ranking member on the appropriations committee and every other member of the delegation held a place on one of the main committees.

Millions of dollars will flow into the state this year as a result of relief, agriculture and flood control legislation.

Farm parity payments will be included as the result of an amendment. to the house bill of which Senator Clark was author. WPA relief will go on. Under the flood control appropriations $1,950,000 is scheduled to be set aside for flood control work on the Missouri river at Kansas City; $725,000 for starting the Clearwater reservoir on White river; $41,000 for the Union Township Drainage district; $40,000 for the St. Genevieve drainage district levee No. 1 and additional money for continuing work on the Wapapella dam.

The state's lone Republican, Dewey Short, took the floor frequently during the session to caustically oppose administration sponsored legislation and to criticize President Roosevelt. His bitter speech against authorizing the Roosevelt library at Hyde Park brought a storm of protest from majority members.

Short was a member of two special Republican committees, one to study national defense, the other the national debt problems.

He was out of the city when the vote was taken on the neutrality bill, but he opposed the Townsend old age pension legislation, the farm parity payments, the reorganization bill, the relief appropriations and monetary measure, voting for social security amendments, defense appropriations and the revenue bill.

The entire house delegation with the exception of Representative Wood, president of the Missouri Federation of Labor, voted against the Townsend old age pension bill. Wood was paired for it.

All members with the exception of Short who were present voted for the reorganization bill. Bell and Wood were paired for it.

Representative Anderson voted against the neutrality bill and Representative Cannon was in Europe when that vote was taken. All but Shannon, who was absent, voted for the social security amendments pegging the old age insurance tax at one per cent and liberalizing the law.

All but Short and Shannon, who was absent, favored the monetary legislation.

Representative Anderson was author of an amendment early in the session to investigate the activities and personnel of the National Labor Relations board. Later another bill along the same line by another author was reported to the house floor and adopted.

Anderson who accused board members from time to time of favoring the CIO and making improper decisions, also introduced a bill to modify drastically the Wagner labor law. It was not reported from committee.

As chairman of the postoffice and post roads committee Romjue introduced many bills along that line, some of which became law.

A legislative controversy arose over the continuation of $6,000,000 in WPA and PWA funds for the St. Louis Jefferson Memorial. Senator Clark obtained adoption of an amendment providing the money could be spent after the July, 1939, deadline instead of reverting to the treasury. The house killed the amendment.

Senator Clark then obtained approval from Secretary Ickes of a plan in which the money would be placed in escrow in federal courts until expended.

Congress Quits In Final Clash

a legislative realist, recognized the practicalities of the situation and withdrew the bill. But in doing so he made his displeasure abundantly evident.

Farewell Note

President Roosevelt sent the legislators a little farewell note wishing them a pleasant "vacation," and Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the majority leader, made a little speech in conclusion.

"It has been a hard session," he began and was much surprised when both senators and gallerysites guffawed.

He went on to say it had been a "hard-working session," which had actually accomplished much more than the events of the last few weeks would indicate. When he had finished he moved adjournment. It carried on a voice vote, with some comedians in the gallery loudly "voting" in the negative.

The deficiency bill was adopted in the form of a conference report—a "compromise which almost completely reversed one of the victories of the powerful House economy bloc. On Wednesday it approved a bill carrying $54,000,000, or $161,000,000 less than the Roosevelt administration had requested.

Yesterday, the Senate increased the bill to $189,000,000. The principal raise was an item of $119,000,000 to continue the Commodity Credit Corporation's program of sustaining agricultural prices by making loans to farmers on their surplus crops in order to keep them off the market. A conference committee then agreed on a total of $185,000,000, including the full $119,000,000 for farm loans.

The House, with few in attendance and still fewer apparently paying any heed to what was taking place, worked away at the conference report and finally approved it. Meanwhile the Senate sent the social security amendments along to the white house. These expand the scope of the social security system, increase many of the benefits and take some $905,000,000 off the scheduled tax burden of workers and employers.

Then the Senate stamped its final "OK" on the deficiency measure.

Finally, from out of the inside pocket of Senator Barkley's grey-blue coat came the one measure upon which all members of both houses were ready to agree—a concurrent resolution setting forth that when the two houses completed their business today they should adjourn "sine die."

(The latin phrase means, literally, "without day," or with no day set for reconvening, beyond that set by the Constitution. The passage of the resolution signified that Congress would not be back in town until next January, unless President Roosevelt called it back earlier for a special session.)

Approval of the resolution was obtained shortly in both chambers. Then the House adjourned and a few minutes later the Senate followed suit at exactly 5:36 p. m., (central standard time), thereby bringing the historic session, marked by spreading revolt against President Roosevelt's policies, to an official close.

Before the final gavels fell, an atmosphere of informality pervaded the capitol.

Business Gain For Autumn

political outlook contains the following elements:

"The investigation of WPA would result in better control of the funds and activities of the government.

"The federal spending program will have considerable force in fall and will gain momentum, contributing to great buying.

"There is a fair prospect that labor relations will be handled in a sounder way.

"Congress has again assumed its constitutional functions.

"The new tax bill permitting carrying over of losses is a stimulation to new investment and business venture."

For the economic side, he cited lower inventories and "a general rise in optimism and business confidence."

On the unfavorable end of the scales, nearly 40 per cent of the retailers singled out the war threat in Europe as a drag on sentiment. Also cited frequently, the Association said, among drawbacks were low farm prices and "continuation of present administration policies."

age insurance taxes, and who reaches 65 during 1939, may be eligible for an old age insurance pension. Originally, the bill provided that only those reaching 65 in 1940 or thereafter would be eligible.

Connally said the La Follette proposal would cost $695,000,000 during the next 15 years and added:

"The price to kill the Connally amendment in the conference committee was the $695,000,000 taken out of the old age insurance fund for people who get to be 65 this year.

"Those people have contributed very little to the trust fund, but under this amendment they will get pensions."

La Follette declared that he did not believe the benefits proposed in the broad social security amendments should be lost in an effort to save the Connally proposal.

President Soon To Take Cruise

WASHINGTON. Aug. 5—(AP)—President Roosevelt will need an overcoat as well as his well-worn navy cape and fishing sweater for the first leg of his 10,000 miles of post-congress traveling.

A sea trip that may touch as far north as Newfoundland, provided there is sufficient time, is on a tentative itinerary that eventually will take him southward and to the west coast.

These, with half a dozen or more trips to his Hyde Park, N. Y., home, will increase this travel mileage since entering the White House, to well beyond the 150,000 mark.

The chief executive, anxious to get away from Washington's sultry weather, kept open house at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue for congressional farewells today.

He intended to leave tomorrow night for Hyde Park and to spend four or five days there, taking with him for final action some of the several hundred bills passed in the final rush of the session.

Then he will board the new cruiser Tuscaloosa, probably at New York, for a leisurely cruise to northeastern waters for some fishing.

After a week or ten days at sea, he will return to Washington for a check on world happenings before returning to the Roosevelt estate on the Hudson.

About October 1 he will start his trip to the San Francisco fair, stopping at the great Smoky Mountains National park in North Carolina and Tennessee to dedicate the park with a speech. His only other scheduled address is at the fair.

The chief executive has given no hint that he intends to make a series of speeches on the issues of lending, neutrality act revision, and additional millions for slum clearance, on which he was defeated at this session.

Gov. Stark Not on Fair Special

Special Carries Group To New York Exposition

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 5—(AP)—Missouri's second "world fair special" sped eastward tonight but the rails clicked a different tune than did those leading west a month ago—Gov. Lloyd C. Stark was not among those present.

The special carried a small group of state officials and a goodly number of private citizens who will join in the festivities of "Missouri Day" at the New York exposition Thursday. The governor's attractive wife was its No. 1 passenger.

Stark explained his remaining behind was due to the press of official business, but said he would fly to New York to participate in the program Thursday.

Political observers, however, wonder if the governor's decision to forego the tour was based solely on the "press of business."

Some pointed out that Stark was determined to remove any political tinge from the trip. Others mentioned that the west coast tour had brought critical rumblings in some quarters because of his absence from the state in the face of a threatened relief crisis.

When plans for the San Francisco trip were announced, observers were quick to seize upon the tour as a feeler for support for the governor in case he viewed the national political arena seriously in 1940.

The governor was quick to deny such speculation declaring "this trip is not to sound out political sentiment for any individual or individuals."

Considerable to-do marked the western journey. The University of Missouri band went along. The dining car larders were well stocked with tasty Missouri ham and visitors were served a "typical" Missouri meal. Stark delivered three speeches along the route.

M. U. Band Absent

But there was little hustle or bustle today when the New York train pulled out. Like the governor, the university band was absent. How much country ham would be available was not made known, and Stark's address is to be given at the fair.

The largest part of the delegation—including Mrs. Stark and the two Stark daughters—boarded the New York special at St. Louis. Included in the state officials making the trip are Claud C. Earp of Nevada, chairman of the state highway commission; Supreme Court Judge Albert M. Clark, R. E. L. Marrs of Carthage, secretary of the senate, and George Blowers, state purchasing agent.

The train will arrive tomorrow in Washington for a stopover while the tourists take a Potomac steamer to Norfolk, Va., and return. Monday and Tuesday will be spent at Williamsburg, Jamestown and Yorktown. The next four days will be devoted to the New York fair with the return trip starting August 12. Stops will be made at Niagara Falls and Detroit.

Two Special Trains

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5—(AP)—Two special trains, one with 372 St. Louisans and the other with 112 outstate Missourians, including Mrs. Lloyd C. Stark, wife of the governor, and their two daughters, left here today for the New York World's fair, which has designated Thursday as "Missouri Day."

On the "Missouri special" train groups from Jefferson City, Kansas City and Springfield.

Daughter Born To Juliana

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 5—(Saturday)—(AP)—Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands presented the House of Orange with another daughter early today.

The child was born at 1:09 a. m., (6:09 p. m., CST Friday) at Soestdyk Palace.

There had been high hopes among Netherlanders that the baby would be the first male heir to the throne of the little kingdom in almost a century.

Princess Beatrix, the first child of the 30-year-old Juliana and 28-year-old German Prince Bernhard, was a year old last January 31.

The hour was such that the general public, long anticipating the event, was not aware of the birth of the baby.

The announcement was made briefly by ticker services to newspapers. At 7 a. m. the news will be broken to the public by a salute of 51 guns—signifying the birth of a girl. A 101-gun salute would have been fired for a boy.

Disappointment, because of the absence of a male heir for the throne now held by Queen Wilhelmina, was expected to be offset by loyal Netherlanders' joy over a royal birth when the event became generally known.

It was announced that the nation's official celebration of the royal birth would be held Monday.

Dapper Dan Tourney Opens

Something New In Golf Is To Be Seen In Pittsburg Pa.

PITTSBURGH., Aug. 5—(AP)—A star-studded field of the nation's top-flight shotmakers was ready today for the $10,000 Dapper Dan Open golf tournament, one of the big money events of the summer.

A first-year venture, with the Dapper Dan's share of the proceeds going to charity, the tournament has attracted most of the big names in golf. Al Abrams, Pittsburgh (Post-Gazette) sports writer, founder of the club, hopes to make it an annual affair.

As the name implies, the club is an organization for the town's better dressed business men and sportsmen.

Nineteen current or former champions have entered the 72-hole medal play test opening next Thursday at the Wildwood Country Club. Heading the list and already established as favorite in the three-day chase for $2,500 top money is Reading, Pa.'s Byron Nelson, National Open champion.

But a glance down the line shows plenty of opposition. There's Henry Picard, the P. G. A. champion from Hershey, Pa., playoff winner of this year's Metropolitan Open and top man in the New Orleans Open. And Dick Metz, of Lake Forest, Ill., fresh from a victory in the St. Paul Open figures high in early predictions.

Long-driving Sammy Snead, from West Virginia and powerful Jimmy Thompson, of Shawnee-On-Delaware, Pa., have signed up, as have Ralph Guldahl, golf's comeback kid, and dead-putting Horton Smith.

And it's next to impossible to rate a list like this:

Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour, Ben Hogan, Ky Laffoon, Jug McSpaden, Denny Shute, Sam Parks, Tony and Johnny Penna, Abe and Al Espinosa, Ted Luther, Bill Kaiser, Jimmy Hines, Gene Kune, Johnny Revolta, Ed Dudley, Craig Wood, Vic Ghezzi, Paul Runyan, Lloyd Mangrum, Ray Mangrum, Tony Manero, Al Brosch, Jim Foulis, Dutch Harrison and Felix Serafin.

To the runner-up goes $1,250, third place $1,000 and fourth $750.

For amateurs there's only a trophy and newspaper headlines, but at least three of the country's best will be on hand. They're Wilfred Wehrle, Racine, Wis., Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati, the former National amateur champion, and Andy Szwedko, Pittsburgh steel worker and national public links titlist.

Vince DiMaggio Back To Reds

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 5—(AP)—Secretary Roy Hamey of the Kansas City American association club said tonight Vince Di Maggio will return to the major leagues next spring as a member of the Cincinnati Reds.

Kansas City is to receive an undisclosed amount of cash and two players, to be delivered next spring, from the National league club.

Di Maggio went to the Boston Bees from San Diego of the Pacific Coast league three years ago. His defensive work was outstanding, but his batting was not up to par. The Bees sold him to Kansas City this season.

He immediately bucked up and has been a sensational home run hitter.

"It's just what I wanted," Di Maggio said before leaving for Milwaukee, where the Blues play tomorrow. "If it had been left to me I would have picked Cincinnati of all the big league clubs.

"I know Bill McKechnie, since I played under him in Boston. I think he's a swell manager and the type I like to play for. Then I believe the Reds will figure in the National league race for some time. I like all the players on that team."

Bill Meyer, Blues manager, said Di Maggio "is a fine hustler and tops when it comes to defensive play."

wages for tool and die and other skilled workers, assurance that there would be no discrimination because of the strike, an extension of the corporation's income security plan to cover certain skilled workers, and an agreement that the UAW-CIO should have exclusive bargaining rights in some plants, estimated by the union to number 42.

Walter P. Reuther, director of the UAW-CIO's General Motors department, said the agreement "goes a long way toward completing the elimination of dual unionism and establishing the UAW-CIO as the exclusive union of the auto workers." Homer Martin's UAW-AFL, which opposed the strike, scoffed at its rival's claims.

Both Knudsen and C. E. Wilson, executive vice-president of G. M. declared the UAW-CIO's claim of exclusive bargaining rights in 4 plants "too high."

standing before the mantle, which will be banked with palms and baskets of white gladioli. Green and white floral decorations will prevail throughout the home, white flowers to be used on the newel post and stairway.

Miss Levy's only attendant will be Miss Claire Agatstein, of St. Louis, her maid of honor, and Dr. Sulkin's best man will be his brother, Sydney Sulkin, of Boston. Before the ceremony Mrs. Lawrence Kahn, of Kansas City, will sing "Because" and "At Dawning," accompanied by Mrs. Fred Ross, who will play Lohengrin's wedding march as a processional, Mendelssohn's march after the ceremony and Liebestraum, softly, during the ceremony.

Miss Levy, charming and vivacious, has chosen blue for her wedding frock. The material is net, a period gown, bouffant skirt, tailored waist with folds of blue batiste trimming and sapphires down the front, all worn over a foundation of pale blue net. At her neck she will wear the bridegroom's wedding gift to her, a lover's knot of gold set with diamonds. Her short English veil will be blue net, arranged on her head in a halo crown. Her bouquet will be pernet roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Agatstein's dress is of primrose yellow chiffon and she will carry blue delphinium.

After the reception the couple will leave for a month's honeymoon, going to California, Washington, Oregon, Banff, and Lake Louise, returning by way of Minnesota, to St. Louis, where they will be at home at 5535 Waterman. Having made her home for a number of years with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Kahn, Miss Lorraine graduated from Smith-Cotton high school with honors, and attended Washington University, St. Louis. A blue, yellow and white motif will be carried out in the table decorations. A cluster of white wedding bells will hang from the dining room chandelier. Covering the table will be a hand-woven French damask cloth in white with blue border and fringe, especially made for Mrs. Kahn's own trousseau.

An ornate silver centerpiece, a French heirloom in the possession of Mrs. Kahn's family for many years, will grace the center of the table. Fashioned in the sidepieces of the large table ornament are small bowls that will contain yellow and blue summer flowers. At either side will be silver candlelabrae holding yellow tapers.

Eight-Thirty Winner Of The Saratoga $8,200 Handicap

Victor In Two Handicap Races In Four Days

Large Crowd In Saratoga History 14,000 There

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 5—(AP)—It looks now as if George D. Widener's big chestnut colt, Eight Thirty, winner of today's Saratoga handicap, is going to have something to say about racing's three year old championship.

Just when William Woodward's Johnstown seemed to have the divisional title in his barn he came a cropper against Challedon and Sun Lover in the Arlington classic and finished third. Then along comes Eight Thirty with two corking stake victories within four days at the Spa, the last in today's Saratoga handicap.

Rated just off the pace in the second spot for the first three-quarters of the mile and a quarter $8,200 stake, the Widener colt finished with a good burst of speed three lengths in front of Mrs. B. F. Whitaker's Sickle T. The Brandywine stable's masked General was third, another five lengths back.

Well in hand at the finish under Jockey Don Meade, the winner covered the distance in 2:03.3, a fifth of a second back of Johnstown's Kentucky Derby time. He beat a fair lot of older horses and will probably face Johnstown and Sun Lover in what looks now to be a wide open travers on August 19. That race may decide the title.

The largest Saturday crowd in Saratoga's history, estimated officially at slightly more than 14,000 persons, saw Eight Thiry in his sparkling win and waited breathlessly for the officials to decide the United States hotel stakes, $9,625 two year old event that shared the day's card with the handicap.

In the end, a claim of foul lodged by Jockey Raymond (Sonny) Workman, against the Millsdale Stable's Andy K, Arlington futurity winner, was allowed and workman got Flight Command into the winner's circle. Officials decided Andy K. carried Commander and Rollo out for an eighth of a mile as the 16-horse field left the barrier.

Andy K covered the six furlongs in 1:13.2 and finished a length and a half in front of Flight Command which beat Hal Price Headley's Titalatora half length with J. H. Louchheim's Smart Set finishing fourth. The latter two were moved up a notch by the disqualification.

Jesse Owens In Kansas City

Give Exhibition In Conjunction With Colored League Game

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 5 — A double-header between pennant contenders in the Negro American baseball league and the appearance of one of the greatest all-around athletes of all time share the limelight Sunday afternoon, August 6, here in Ruppert Stadium.

The Monarchs play the St. Louis Stars, but that is only half of a double main event that is expected to lure more than 10,000 spectators through the turnstiles and prove one of the most interesting sports shows of the season in the Missouri Valley.

The athlete in question is Jesse Owens, three time winner in the 1936 Olympics and a 1-man track team when he was smashing the world's records at Ohio State university. Owens climaxed a career as an amateur by smashing two records in the last Olympics in Berlin and equalling another to lead the Stars and Stripes to another brilliant victory.

He tied the record of 10.3 seconds in the 100 meters, came back to establish a new standard of 20.7 seconds in the 200 meters spring and ran out the string with a leap of 26 feet 5 and five-sixteenth inches in the broad jump. It was the greatest individual performance in the history of the Olympics and stamped the scholarly Negro as the super-athlete of his time.

Owens will run an exhibition race against time Sunday afternoon.

He has remained in condition and competent timers, who have held a watch on him, say he still is the fastest human in the world.

The program Sunday starts at 1 p. m.

Philly A's Stop Browns

Bob Johnson's 16th Home Run With Two On Gave A's Lead

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5—(AP)—Bob Johnson's 16th home run of the season and 13 bases on balls enabled the Athletics to come from behind for a 10 to 7 victory over St. Louis today. The victory evened the series at one game each.

Johnson's clout with Bill Beckman and Dick Siebert on base and two out in the seventh inning sent the Athletics ahead for the first time since the third inning when St. Louis scored three runs to take the lead. George Gill, pitching for the Browns at the time, fed Johnson the home run ball with the count three and two on the Athletics' slugger.

Six runs behind at the start of their half of the fifth, the Athletics twice filled the bases to score three runs, with Roxie Lawson walking "Skeeter" Newsome to force in Johnson with the third run, and added three more in the sixth off Lawson and Gill.

Nelson Potter and Bill Beckman were nicked for 10 hits by St. Louis but were less liberal with bases on balls.

APPARENTLY the game between the Lawson Merchants and the Branson Sluggers will get underway this afternoon at Branson, despite the threats of T. F. Williamson, business manager of the Merchants to file an injunction to stop the game. A Missouri Semi-Pro championship no doubt will be settled at this game, but a trophy won't be there to be presented.

A messed up affair was had in the final game of the series in Sedalia last month resulting in the starting of a basketfull of protests being offered by baseball teams, resulting in the decision of George Sisler who declared one game must be played off without the two ineligible players Lefty Leill and Andy Yurchak.

Commissioner J. Hayden Lucy, named the Merchants opponents own diamond for the play-off, at Branson. Mr. Sisler's ruling stated the game must be played at a time to be set by Commissioner Lucy, but the opinion did not specify the location.

Under the ruling the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce protested the game being taken to Branson, but like Lawson a "Cold shoulder" was turned to their protesting.

THE playing manager of the Lawson team "Red" Smith, was in Sedalia Saturday evening, and said, "We don't care about filing the suit, we feel we can beat Branson on their own diamond with P. Fox pitching. The reason we are going down tonight is to get some rest and be ready for the game Sunday afternoon."

From the conversation of the accompaning players they expect to do every thing that is allowed in baseball to jump the Branson team up and win the game.

Under a ruling made by Lucy the winning team can change three players on their list before the Arkansas club, and this is what was said by Mr. Smith, "If we win, which I expect we will do, Mr. Lucy will find the three names changed, and two will be on the list 'Lefty' Liell and Andy Yurchak."

COMMISSIONER Lucy endeavored to lay the blame for the game not being played in Sedalia in the lap of the Sports Editor. In a letter to the Chamber of Commerce he said he had not heard from the Sports Editor and his understanding the Merchants would not give Liberty Park up Sunday August 6, he was compelled to get another location.

According to Lucy's own letters, his letter was not received in Sedalia regarding the play-off date until the day after he had set the date for the game to be played at Branson.

Mr. Lucy will probably find a bunch of fighting Merchants on his hands when the Lawson team arrives, and Branson probably will find out the Merchants mean business and intend winning the ball game.

THE trophy which is to be presented to the winner is still in the office of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, waiting for a home.

Manager Smith Saturday said he hoped he could stop off and pick it up on the way back to Lawson.

Nothing has been heard from Branson regarding the protests, their team keeping very quiet, doing considerable listening and no talking.

Marshall Holding Softball Tourney

Marshall is holding the annual Central Missouri Softball tournament for this season, and Sedalia is represented by the Rosenthal Clothiers. The Clothiers play their first tournament game on Tuesday night against the Corder club in the first game of the evening.

The tournament opens on Monday night with the Red Cross team of Marshall playing the first game at 8 o'clock against the Stover softball team. The second game of the evening will be between Pontiac and Sweet Springs to be played at 9 o'clock.

Tuesday night the second game on the program will be at 9 o'clock when the MFA team of Marshall plays the Slater town team.

The winners of the two Monday night games and the winners of the Tuesday night games will play each other in the semi-finals while the finals will be played at 8:30 o'clock Friday night.

Roy Edwards, manager of the Clothiers is confident the Sedalia team will be able to battle through the district tournament, and make a good representation in the state tournament to be played at St. Joseph, this fall.

Sedalia I. O. O. F. Lose To Warsaw Score 20 to 13

The I. O. O. F. softball team took a defeat at Warsaw Friday night by a 20 to 13 score in a nine inning game. The I. O. O. F. declared in returning home it was a game with the umpires and not the team, however, twenty runs were scored by the Warsaw players.

Batteries for Warsaw were C. Dick and H. Dick, for Sedalia, Stark, Oswald and Eirls.

Boxers Fight At Windsor

The second of a series of amateur boxing shows being staged by the Lions club of Windsor, was held at the City Barn in Windsor Friday night and proved to be a very successful show. More than 100 fans attended the bouts.

Judges who judged the bouts decided inasmuch as all the boys boxing were members of the boxing club sponsored by the Lions, in case of a close fight it would be called a draw. Only one decision was given in the seven bouts, that between the heavyweights.

Kenneth "Two-Ton" Carter was defeated when he was unable to come back after the second round, and Lloyd Hoseworth was declared the winner by a technical knockout.

The two rounds was a slug-fest and the shortage of wind proved too much for Carter and he declared "I just can't do it" and forfeited the last round.

In fact there was plenty of leather pushing in every bout on the card much to the liking of all the fans. The boys are showing a decided improvement over their first fight, and probably by the time the tournament dates roll around will be in championship form.

Other bouts on the card were: John Schwitzer vs. Junior Brooks; Carl Schwitzer vs. Tommy McDonald; Junior Dickey vs. Dorman Clem; Ernie "Southpaw" Carpenter vs. Ed Evroard; Virgil Wharton vs. Robert Hand; Norman Lovan vs. Earl Martin.

The club plans on holding their third fight the middle of September at which time a team match with some club from Versailles, Marshall or Sedalia will be staged.

Phillies Bow To Cardinals

Mize Nearly Breaks League Record For Put-outs, Gets 20

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5—(AP)—Turning in a masterpiece of pitching, Curt Davis held the Philadelphia Phillies to four hits today as the St. Louis Cardinals won their seventh successive game, 5 to 1. It was Curt's fifteenth victory of the season.

Johnny Mize, Cards first baseman, was credited with 20 put-outs, just one short of the National League record, and Stu Martin had a busy afternoon at second with 10 chances, also only one short of the major league mark.

Ike Pearson, Phils' young right hander, hurled good ball for six innings, limiting the Cards to one run during that part of the game. But he faltered in the seventh and eighth and the Cards bunched five of their nine safeties.

Davis, also a dangerous hitter, drove in two runs with a long double to center field in the seventh inning.

Sugar Creek Vs. Merchants In Two Games

Three Game Series Ends This Afternoon At Liberty Park

A doubleheader is to be played this afternoon on the Liberty park diamond between the Sugar Creek baseball club and the Sedalia Merchants. These two games are the last of a three game series, the first game this afternoon to be called at 1:15 o'clock.

The Sugar Creek team is out to get revenge for the defeat handed them in the first game when with Al Schrik on the mound for the Merchants, they were defeated 2 to 1. Schrick incidentally struckout twenty-one of the Sugar Creek batters.

Manager Vincent Siegel announced the Merchants would use both Horner and Sullivan. Horner will probably start the first game while Sullivan will handle the second game assignment.

Jake Sumners is back with the Merchants and the catching duties are expected to be divided between Jake and Overfelt.

The services of Hoffman and Blaine are being sought for this afternoon, and it is possible they might be given the assignment instead of Sullivan. Both these pitchers have been in demand by numerous ball clubs the past several weeks.

The visitors announced their pitching staff is composed of Evans, G. Vida or Linson, and as yet the pitching assignments for the two games have not been made.

The probable lineups are: Sugar Creek — Maylick shortstop, Rosgay third base, A. Vida, centerfield, Beal left field, Sopich, first base, Novak, catch, Payer or Secke right field, Farrand second base, Evans, Vida and Linson pitch.

For Sedalia Merchants: Walker shortstop, Light second base, Slayton centerfield, Zey right field, Overfelt or Carver left field, Livengood first base, Taylor third base, Overfelt, Sumners or Simon catch.

The umpires will be Barnes and Rugen.

This Week In Missouri History

FAR WEST — One Time Mormon Capital of the World.

The history of the rise and fall of the town of Far West, founded as headquarters of the Mormon church, rivals in interest the history of any town in the state. The Mormons had an extensive missionary program and a century ago gave promise of making Far West one of the religious centers of the world. Had fortune favored this undertaking as it has since favored the city-building endeavors of the Mormons at Salt Lake City, or of the Reorganized Latter Day Saints at Independence, Missouri, this historic town might now be one of the leading cultural and commercial centers in northwest Missouri.

The Mormons were a people with a strong messianic hope. For them the golden age was in the future, and they looked forward to a time when error and wrong doing would be eradicated. In keeping with such a religious philosophy their capital must necessarily be a "City Beautiful." Therefore W. W. Phelps and John Whitmer, agents of the church, were sent to examine the rolling grass lands now included in Caldwell county and to locate a possible site for the new city. These men found the country very much to their liking and selected a high elevation on the prairie five miles west and two miles north of the present town of Kingston. On August 8, 1836, one hundred and three years ago this week, they entered one square mile of land and soon thereafter laid out Far West.

Few towns of a century ago were planned on a more magnificent scale. The town site, one mile square, was laid out in blocks 396 feet square. The center square which was also the highest point on the plat, was set aside for a temple. Four boulevards 132 feet wide diverged at right angles from the temple lot, while the lesser streets were each eighty-two and one-half feet wide.

Houses Log Cabins

Although nearly all of the first houses were log cabins, lumber was brought from lower Ray county and soon a number of frame houses were built. In the fall of 1836 a large school was erected. This building was also used temporarily as a church, and court was held here from December, 1836, when the county was created, until the county seat was moved to Kingston seven years later.

With religious ceremony ground was broken and an excavation made for a temple on July 3, 1837. This event probably more than any other has made Far West the shrine of all branches of Latter Day Saintism. Joseph Smith, who did not arrive at Far West until November, rebuked his followers for beginning such a structure without more adequate preparation but on a gala occasion one year later the cornerstone of the temple was laid. In 1839 some of the leaders of the church placed a few stones in the southeast corner of the excavation. Since then, however, nothing has been done toward building a temple at Far West.

In 1838, less than two years after its founding, the town had 150 houses, 8 stores, 6 blacksmith shops and 2 hotels. Some 5,000 adherents to the Mormon religion were living in the town and in the surrounding country.

In the fall and winter of 1838-1839 the Mormons were driven from the state. The town of Far West was sacked, but as the capital city of a church that developed an effective evangelical program and made thousands of converts at home and abroad, it will always hold an important place in the history of northwest Missouri. Here was established the first school, the first post office and the first printing press in Caldwell county, and the first house in Kingston and the first store building and stock of goods in Mirabile were even moved to these towns from Far West.

House Fly, A Filthy Disease-Carrier, Is Prolific Breeder, But Short-Lived

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

For many years now the house fly has been under suspicion as being not only an annoying insect but also one capable of menacing health. Flies which come in contact with food or drink after having been bred in filth are, obviously, a menace to health.

The common house fly got its name because that is where it is most commonly seen. One investigator collected more than 23,000 flies in dining rooms in different parts of the United States. Ninety-eight per cent of those which he collected were of one variety —namely, the common house fly. When the flies were examined they averaged about equally between the two sexes, although 54 to 57 per cent were females in contrast to 43 to 46 per cent of males.

The life of the fly is not a long one. It passes through a number of stages: the egg stage, the larva or maggot stage, the pupa, adult or fully winged insect. In summer the egg stage requires about 20 hours; the larval stage, 5 days; the pupa stage about 4 days, which makes a total of about 10 days from the appearance of the egg to the development of the adult fly. That means that there can be from 10 to 12 generations of one fly family in one season.

A female fly lays from 75 to 150 eggs at a time and can indulge in several such layings at intervals of three or four days. A female fly can begin laying eggs from 9 to 12 days after emerging from the pupa stage. The records indicate that a female fly may lay as many as 160 eggs in one batch, that large batches can be deposited at intervals of 36 hours and that one female fly during her lifetime may lay 21 batches or a total of 3,360 eggs in 31 days after she emerges.

Flies prefer filth. The favorite material on which eggs are deposited and on which fly larvae feed is excrement, especially of horses. Other suitable materials are garbage, the refuse from kitchens, and decomposing material from animals. In rural areas 95 per cent of house flys are bred in manure.

Obviously the condition for the development and promulgation of house flies are generally available and it is not surprising to know that they multiply at a terrific rate. It has been estimated that a pair of flies beginning operations in April may be the progenitors—if all were to live—of 191,010,000,000,000,000,000 flies by August. If each fly occupied one cubic inch and if all of them lived, the number would cover the earth 47 feet deep.

TOMORROW: Attack flies at their breeding-places.

A new dirigible having a gas capacity of less than one-sixth of the Akron and the Macon is now being built for naval training purposes.

Approximately 50 separate tests, requiring some 60 flying hours and covering more than five months, are conducted on the latest and biggest Boeing Clipper 314.

Verdun—Battlefield Of the World War

GREATEST name in the history of the World War is Verdun. For four years, some of the heaviest fighting of the war centered about this strongly fortified city of northern France. To the Allies, it became a symbol of heroic defense; to the enemy, a prize to prove the power of its crushing advance.

More than 600,000 men died at Verdun that the vow, "They shall not pass," might be kept. For 11 months, from February to December, 1916, French and Germans battled fiercely for possession of Douaumont Ridge, overlooking the city.

Early in 1914, the Germans made their first thrust at Verdun. Forts Douaumont and Vaux, two of the 30 forts in the ring around Verdun, saw heavy fighting. The French dug in, waited.

A year and a half later, Germany's General Falkenhayn launched his plan to blast French resistance with artillery, conserving his manpower. But it did not work. The French stood in their tracks and died. Even the Crown Prince's vigorous attack failed to move that French wall.

Fighting eased for a time, but in 1918 Americans wrote brilliant history at St. Mihiel and the Argonne, in the Verdun sector.

The 23rd anniversary of the battle of Verdun is honored by the recent French commemorative stamp, above.

War On Insects If You Want Children To Sleep In Peace

Dear Mrs. Wake:

No wonder you are so tired and weary with the insect world pestering you and the children to the point of martyrdom.

Don't think that because your husband can sleep like old Rip Van Winkle all through the night, that you are just being nervous for nothing.

It so happens that many people seem to be immune to the maddening hum of the lady mosquito who needs our blood to perfect her eggs, and that others are really allergic to the bite.

The poor children may sleep, as you say, for a time, but the itching wakes them. And next day they look as though they had a good case of pox.

Well, the first thing is to close screens and not permit a hole anywhere. Screens must fit the window frames.

If I were you, I should arrange white netting over the beds..

Then, too, if you can stand the smell of oil of citronella, put some of it on the sheets. Keep an insecticide spray at hand and go over the screens, floor and curtains.

Gets After Flies, Too.

I am going economist, for a minute, to get after the "authorities" whoever they are, who won't do a thing about the mosquito menace. If we had the yellow-fever type, it wouldn't be long until every ditch was drained, every swamp covered with oil, and every bit of exposed rubbish made a civil offense.

Flies are dangerous in another way. You are right about that. They are covered with webs and hairs that accumulate filth. They stalk over offal and then light on food, or on our baby's lips. So swat every single fly and mosquito you see. Each one killed now means millions less in a very few weeks.

I think you would be doing your city a service if you reported every open garbage can or tin-can pile you saw, and got your neighbors to do the same. Get your husbands interested.

Yours sincerely,
Olive Roberts Barton.

A position finder, which tells the airline and military pilot where he is within two to five miles of his exact location quickly and without any calculation, is now being sold commercially.

Speed tests have shown that the Boeing Clipper 314, being fully loaded, will cruise at 10,000 feet at just 173 miles an hour, while using only 60 per cent of the available 6,000 horsepower.

Dear friends:

There is a wide variety of tastes and opinions regarding funeral arrangements.

The important thing, as we see it, is to provide the service exactly as the family wishes. If suggestions are wanted, we are glad to offer them. But we want them to be merely suggestions, and not dictatorial in any sense.

Whatever your wishes, it is always our desire to carry them out to the very best of our ability.

Judge In Noted Case Is Dead

CHICAGO, Aug. 6—(AP)—Circuit Judge John R. Caverly, 78, veteran Cook County jurist who presided at the Leob-Leopold murder trial in 1924, died Friday in Burmuda.

News of his death was received by his sister, Mrs. John E. Maloney, from a nurse who accompanied Judge Caverly when he left Chicago July 22.

Judge Caverly presided at the trial of Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., scions of millionaire families. They were charged with the thrill slaying of Bobby Franks.

Both Loeb and Leopold were given life sentences in addition to 99 years each. Twelve years after the trial, Loeb was fatally stabbed in a fight with James Day, a fellow convict, at the state penitentiary in Joliet, Ill.

Judge Caverly's death followed by more than a year the passing of Clarence Darrow, another prominent figure in the dramatic Loeb-Leopold case. Darrow defended the thrill slayers, who pleaded guilty, and was credited with saving them from going to the electric chair.

After hearing the case without a jury and making his decision, Judge Caverly retired to a hospital for a long rest and treatment.

German Refugee Kills Himself

NEW YORK. Aug. 5.—(AP)—Albert Aaron, German refugee whose wife died July 12 of an overdose of sleeping tablets, was found hanging Friday from the door of his apartment in Kew Gardens.

Police Detective Patrick Brennan said Aaron left a note to his sons, Daniel 14 and Frank 11, stating, "I am going out of your life to meet your mother." Neighbors said the boys were attending a summer camp somewhere in New Jersey.

Aaron, 53-year-old attorney from Gilsse, near Frankfort, Germany, came here 22 months ago. Neighbors said he had been unemployed and that the only relative of whom he ever spoke was a sister, Mrs. B. Katz of Philadelphia.

Bonnie Belle Does Unusual Equin e Stunts

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Residents of this Northeast Missouri town are not surprised when they see a horse walking down a sidewalk pushing a baby buggy with a baby in it. They instantly recognize Bonnie Belle, their wonder horse.

A storm gave Bonnie Belle to Tom Flinchpaugh. And Flinchpaugh has given Kirksville the unique experience of daily glimpses of equine stunt phenomena.

It started when a great ice sheet formed over Northeast Missouri in the winter of 1937, gripping the earth for six weeks with such vengeance it was unsafe for man or beast to venture far beyond home or barn. With farming activity at a minimum Flinchpaugh cast about for something to occupy his time.

He had a sleek sorrel saddle colt in his barn and it occurred to him the animal's sire and dam both had been schooled somewhat in stunt performance. The colt's name was Bonnie Belle. Flinchpaugh started testing her capacity for tricks.

He first taught her to lie down at his bidding; then to make a bow. That was easy. He simply took off his hat and bowed to her, then showed her how to move her head to achieve similar effect. Bonnie caught on so rapidly it amazed Flinchpaugh.

"I made it my hobby to train the colt," he said. "Later in the year, when the heavy season of farm work came on, I'd go out to the barn after dark, hank up a lantern on the wall, and spend my evenings working with her."

Tricks On Teeter-Board

Flinchpaugh introduced the colt to a teeter-board. First, he laid a board on the floor of the barn and taught her to walk on it. Then, he put a 4x4 under the center so it would tilt, had Bonnie stand over the fulcrum, then showed her by moving her feet how she could make the board drop first on one side then theother. It was but a short step from that to greater heights on the board.

Bonnie now is three years old, with a glistening flame-hued coat, silvery mane and tail and star-bright expression. Flinchpaugh hasn't counted the number of tricks she can do. There are at least 100, however.

He has moved to town, having purchased an interest in a funeral home, and makes his hobby work to the amusement of the townspeople as well as himself. For a while he kept her at the Adair County infirmary barn and the inmates had a daily free show. Now he has her in a barn at the south edge of town and it is not uncommon for him to rehearse her along the city streets, where clusters of persons watch. Thus far he has resisted commercialization of her talents to the extent she is always available as the star performer of local shows.

She performs mental feats, walks on her knees, rolls a barrel, smokes a pipe, executes intricate steps on pedestals, walks a narrow plank between pedestals, and does various dances to mention only a few of her accomplishments.

"She works best without a bridle," he said, "simply obeying my commands."

Bonnie has a brother and sister now which Flinchpaugh also is training.

Allotment On Wheat For 1940

COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug. 5.—(AP)—County allotments for the entire state have been completed, and individual allotments within each county worked out for all but 20 counties as the state AAA committee nears completion of the task of letting Missouri farmers know how large their wheat acreage may be for the 1940 growing season under the federal farm program.

C. W. Sheppard, state chairman, said individual farm allotments for the remaining 20 counties would be in the mail by the end of the week. He pointed out some counties are permitted a 25 per cent increase in acreage, in as much as the federal program calls for 1,963,713 acres of wheat in Missouri. in comparison with the 1,705,277 acres premitted last year.

County allotments for 1940 announced Friday in addition to the 59 county allotments revealed a week ago, include:

Pettis 40,233; Cooper, 42,484; Benton, 12,215.

Palmyra Paper Has Centennial

PALMYRA, Mo., August 5.—The Palmyra Spectator this week observed its centennial and during the entire 100 years only the name Sozey has appeared in the masthead as editor and publisher.

The Spectator was founded August 3, 1838, by Jacob Sosey as the Missouri Whig and General Advertiser. When the Whig party passed out of existence the name was changed to its present title. On Jacob Sosey's retirement, his son, Frank H. Sosey, took over and edited the Spectator for 50 years. The present editor and publisher is Donald H. Sosey, son of Frank Sosey, who is a world war veteran and postmaster here. For many years Miss Hallie Sosey, daughter of Jacob Sosey, was on the paper's staff.

The paper, which old timers boast, has only missed one edition in the century of its existence, is believed the only paper in Missouri to be owned by one family for that time.
